Quintessential pantomime dame Clive Rowe as Widow Twankey (left) and Matt Dempsey as her son Wishy Washy in Aladdin at the Hackney Empire

By
Marcel Reinard

THE curtain has well and truly risen on another triumphant season of pantomime at Hackney Empire.

This year's production of Aladdin has been met with emphatic praise in the national press, solidifying Hackney's reputation as the best place for panto in the UK.

Attending a star-studded press night, was comedian and Empire fund-raiser, Griff Rhys Jones, who said: "This is the best show director Susie McKenna has done. It gets better every year. It was energetic and very enjoyable."

TV presenter Vanessa Feltz added: "It was funny, fast and witty. The Empire is amazing!"

The borough's favourite dame, Clive Rowe, stars as Widow Twankey in the 11th anniversary panto at the Mare Street theatre – backed by a cast that includes regulars Kat B and Tameka Empson. Holby City's Sharon D Clarke also returns as the voice of a singing camel, and a loveable panda leads the audience in a dance. The show takes some of the traditional elements from the original 'Arabian Nights' story while adding a distinct East London flavour; with a large chunk of the story set in fictitious Chinese suburb of Ha-Ka-Ney.

Show director, Susie McKenna, said: "This is one the most technical shows we've ever done. Aladdin lends itself to magic so there's a lot of scope for spectacle. We really pushed the boat out this year. But we've also tightened our belts to bring the best show we can, that is also value for money – and the reaction has been amazing. I don't think I've seen less than four out of five in reviews.

"We really hope to get even more of a local response – we rely on it – and hopefully this is the first rung on a new ladder for the Empire."

The historic theatre is set to temporarily reduce programming after getting into financial difficulties. Following a package of extra financial support from the Arts Council and Hackney Council, however, and the appointment of an interim chief executive, shows are due to restart in early summer, with full programming returning from the 2010 panto onwards. In the meantime, vital maintenance to the Empire will be carried out, alongside a business restructure of staffing, marketing and programming.

Message from the Mayor

Halt the spread of betting shops

READERS may remember that a couple of years ago I launched a campaign to ask the Government to look at the laws surrounding betting shops to make it easier for councils to control the number of new ones opening in their area.

At the time, residents and traders in Clapton were rightly annoyed about a proposed third betting shop on Chatsworth Rd. Although I and local councillors supported their campaign, in the end the Council was legally powerless to prevent it.

The issue hasn't gone away and the Council has been working behind the scenes to find ways to get the changes to legislation that we need to control the proliferation of betting shops. The Government has invited councils, through the Local Government Association (LGA), to submit proposals under the Sustainable Communities Act, for ways that they can be given extra powers to change their areas for the better. We put forward a proposal for councils to gain the necessary powers to be able to control the spread of bookies, and we have just learnt that our idea is likely to be short-listed by the LGA for further consideration. We will find out at the end of this month whether it has been one of the few selected to go forward to ministers for their consideration. If it does go through to the Government for approval, we will certainly be lobbying them again to persuade them of our case.

There is still a long way to go in this process, but I think it is really important that we make every effort we can to get this change to the law.

I know from my postbag that it is an issue that many residents feel strongly about and that there is a sense of real frustration that no matter how strong the community campaigns or the Council supports them, current laws do not allow us to protect our own high streets and help fill them with the kind of shops that local people want to see. I am committed to campaign on behalf of residents to improve the quality of our town centres and, if this is successful, it will be a step in the right direction.

Tackling hate

By
Emma Britton

Concerns about homophobic attacks and harassment in Shoreditch were the subject of a gathering of police officers, councillors and a local MP.

Hackney's Cabinet Adviser on Crime, Cllr Julius Nkafu, was joined by Hackney South MP, Meg Hillier, on a walkabout in Hackney Road. They then joined a meeting at the Joiners Arms – a pub popular with the Lesbian, Gay and Transgender (LGBT) community in Hackney – to talk about recent incidents and discuss how to tackle the issue.

Hackney police told the meeting that there had been 58 incidents of homophobia and 42 incidents of transphobia reported during 2009. Most of the reports were about verbal abuse, but in recent months there have been three cases of grievous bodily harm.

The links between alcohol and abusive behaviour were discussed, as was the importance of street lighting, CCTV, and the need to monitor cameras for intelligence.

Cllr Nkafu said: "Hackney has been shocked by these recent attacks and I would like to assure members of the LGBT community that the Council takes issues of hate crime very seriously, and that we are determined to work with the police and local communities to put a stop to this."

Meg Hillier said: "Hackney has a deserved reputation for tolerance, where people of different views and backgrounds live together, without division. We should all guard this jealously and tackle crimes of hate with vigour.”

“The Council takes issues of hate crime very seriously”

The Hackney Singers on stage at the Coliseum

A Hackney hallelujah

COMMUNITY choir the Hackney Singers have led a 1,000-strong performance of the popular hymn 'Hallelujah' on national radio.

They took to the stage at the London Coliseum – home of the English National Opera (ENO) – for the Sing Hallelujah project, a nationwide initiative to encourage more people to sing. The performance was broadcast on BBC Radio 3 programme 'The Choir' on 6 December.

The BBC said the Hackney choir was chosen because it wanted a large, non-audition, London choir and had heard very positive things about the group.

Choir member Andy Brown said: "It was a privilege to be asked to perform at the historic home of the ENO. Many of us have been here before, but in the audience. It was an amazing experience to sing on that huge stage."

Hear the Hackney Singers at their Christmas Concert at St Peter de Beauvoir, De Beauvoir Road, N1, at 7.30pm on 19 December.

Beating the bookies

PROPOSALS to give councils the powers to control the spread of betting shops could become a reality, thanks to a review of the Sustainable Communities Act.

The Local Government Association asked councils to come up with ideas for new laws to help shape sustainable communities.

Hackney's proposal to manage the number of bookies is likely to be on a shortlist, from which the Government will select proposals to become law. Hackney has one of the highest amounts of betting shops in the country, and residents have campaigned against new ones.

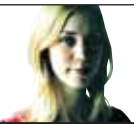

The Council does not currently have the powers to control betting shops, however.

Cllr Sophie Linden, Cabinet Member for Customer Services and Sustainability, said: "It would be a real boost if we could get these powers on the statute books. It's been very frustrating that the Council does not have the legal powers we need to respond to residents' concerns on this issue."

"No one is saying that there is no place for bookmakers on our high streets, but when they exist in such large numbers it has a detrimental effect on the character of local shopping areas," she added.

The final shortlist for the proposals will be announced in the New Year.

Relax and enjoy

Clockwise from above: A Hackney Host; the electronic 'sniffer dog'; Hackney CCTV centre; and the JEDI team out on the streets

By
Miranda Yates

PARTYGOERS may have noticed a team of helpful types on Vespa scooters taking to the streets of Shoreditch recently.

As part of the Council's fun Christmas safety initiative – Hackney Say Relax – these guides have been out and about helping revellers look after themselves and respect local residents. Every weekend since 4 December, the Hackney Hosts have been riding into the busiest parts of Shoreditch, to hand out maps to visitors, and give directions and crucial information on how to get home safely.

In the wee small hours, they've been handing out lollipops with a 'Shh' message on the wrapper, to remind party-goers to consider residents as they make their way home.

Shoreditch, already one of the busiest night-time

economies in London, sees almost a third more visitors in the run up to Christmas. The Hosts, in their retro 1980s style 'Hackney Say Relax' T-shirts, are just part of the Council's efforts to make the area feel safe at night and a pleasant place to live in.

There's also an electronic sniffer dog that can detect if illegal substances have been used in bars and clubs; a marshalled taxi rank; and visits by the Joint Enforcement Development Initiative (JEDI) team to bars that have suffered repeated problems with drugs and anti-social behaviour. Pubs and clubs can also sign up to a CCTV/radio scheme which allows doormen to radio in concerns about vulnerable drunk people or trouble-makers, and the Council and police can then use CCTV to keep track of any problems. Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “We're running Hackney Say Relax to highlight some of the important schemes and services we offer to keep people safe at Christmas and throughout the year. This is a fun initiative with a serious message.

“We want people to have a great time in Shoreditch whilst taking responsibility for their safety and respecting residents.”

Let it snow

The snow makers get busy on De Beauvoir Estate and (inset) actors Patterson Joseph and Angela Griffin

By
Marcel Reinard

DESPITE snow looking increasing unlikely this year – at least one part of Hackney appeared to have its White Christmas.

An artificial snowfall was created in De Beauvoir Estate for short film 'Let it Snow', part of a series of '10 Minute Tales' to be shown on Sky1 during the festive season.

Filming took place over two days on the estate, with the snow surface needing up to five hours to create. To get the effect the crew used a biodegradable and chemical-free paper, while the corners of the square were covered with SnowMembrane – a synthetic sheet that looks like settled snow.

The film focuses on a businessman who puts his job ahead of his family, but comes to realise they are more important than work.

It stars Angela Griffin of 'Cutting It' and 'Waterloo Road' and Paterson Joseph from 'Peep Show'.

Also filmed in Hackney's Well Street for the Sky series was 'Perfect Day'. All films will be without dialogue and broadcast on subsequent nights over the festive period.

'Let It Snow' will be shown on 24 December, at 9pm; 'Perfect Day', 30 December, 9pm.

Artist Kaffe Matthews takes a turn on her own project

Bikes, music and clean air

CYCLISTS and onlookers gathered in Gillett Square for a bike-powered sound installation.

An early downpour on 6 December was replaced by sunshine as children and adults peddled and listened to artist Kaffe Matthew's musical composition made from recordings by pupils from Colvestone and Shacklewell primary schools in Dalston.

Staged the weekend before the start of the UN Climate Change Conference in Copenhagen, it was the first event for Invisible Dust, a project involving artists and scientists working together to explore air pollution, health and climate change.

The event was organised with help from Gillett Squared, and funded by the Council and the National Lottery through Arts Council England.

Problem pub shut after raid

A PUB where drugs were being used has been closed, after a joint raid by police and the Council.

Four people were arrested in the Cricketers, Cricketfield Road, E5, on 27 November for a range of offences including for possession with intent to supply, possession of cannabis, obstructing a search and immigration offences.

During the raid, several bags of cannabis were seized and swab tests revealed the use of class A drugs around the pub, and an order to close the premises was obtained. Hackney Downs Safer Neighbourhoods Team acted after they received a number of complaints from residents that the pub was being blighted by anti-social behaviour. Sergeant Barrie Beyler said: "It is an irresponsibly-run pub and we will now seek to use licensing legislation to close it down permanently."

"This temporary closure order would not have been possible without the support of local residents and I would urge any others who have yet to come forward to contact my team so that their concerns can be addressed."

Praise for care

A GOVERNMENT watchdog has rated Hackney as 'excellent' for its provision of adult social care.

The Care Quality Commission awarded the borough top marks in its annual performance assessment, meaning Hackney's adult social care services are rated among the best in the country.

The report praised work to give vulnerable adults choice and independence and highlighted preventative services that reflect the needs of local people.

The watchdog was impressed by residents' involvement in the design of services, such as older people's contributions to their care planning process; work with the Charedi Orthodox Jewish community; and the user-led consultation around the transformation of adult social care programme.

Peter Allum, who was involved in the consultation and who has a learning disability, said: "I enjoyed being part of it as it gave me a sense of belonging."

"It showed people with learning disabilities that things are being done and that their needs are being recognised," he added.

Release the inner diva

By
Marcel Reinard

PANTO? I said. 'All that dressing up and cross-dressing? You must be joking,' recalls Tameka Empson.

Ironically, this is the same woman who broke out in a loud Tina Turner medley in a busy West End music store. And the same woman who stripped in front of a bemused stranger in the middle of a fast food restaurant before demanding £35.

As one third of the hit hidden camera comedy show '3 Non-Blondes', Tameka became known for her outrageous antics, duping unsuspecting members of the public – and her personality veers from funny to affectionate to theatrical, with a blistering pace that lends itself to improvisation.

It was renowned director Susie McKenna who convinced Tameka to take to the stage in Hackney Empire's famed panto. And five years later she's still on board. Currently playing the Empress of China in Aladdin, a show with so many 'bests', 'performs' and five-star ratings from critics, it's becoming difficult to keep count.

Tameka said: "I think the secret is it's traditional – the outfits, the stories, the feel – with a really modern twist, and represents the diversity in Hackney.

"Plus it's a lovely theatre. We've just had in the young kids for the matinee performance – and their screams," she laughs.

"Christmas wouldn't be the same without the Empire pantomime. That's why I keep coming back for more.

“The secret is it's traditional with a really modern twist, and represents the diversity in Hackney”

"We're like a family and we totally trust each other. Kat B running around – if I'm ever feeling down or tired about anything he always picks me up.

"Plus there's Clive Rowe. We do a duet of a Beyonce song in the show. He's got that voice; that fantastic baritone – I'm going to beat that voice one day. I've got a competition with him – not sure if he knows it."

Tameka grew up in Harringey and fondly remembers the day she decided to pursue a show business career. "I was seven and when I came back from school I used to see all of these 1980s adverts and wanted to do it too," she recalls. Her mum signed her up to the Anna Scher Theatre School in Islington – which has nurtured careers as diverse as award-winning theatre director Thea Sharrock, to Spandau Ballet's Martin and Gary Kemp and model Samantha Fox. "In fact, I get most of my comedy from my Mum. She's just naturally funny," Tameka adds.

Her big break came with independent film 'Beautiful Thing'. She said: "It's one thing to say you have a dream, but when you actually get there it's fantastic. I love getting up in the morning, living my life and meeting new and always different people. And my dad has finally said 'yes, Tameka you can act'."

After taking her one-woman show about a washed-up soul singer to the Edinburgh Fringe Festival, she is now branching out into other genres. "I love comedy, but no actor really wants to be typecast. I played an abused Bosnian woman over summer; the first time I tried to read it in rehearsals I couldn't finish, it was horrific," she said.

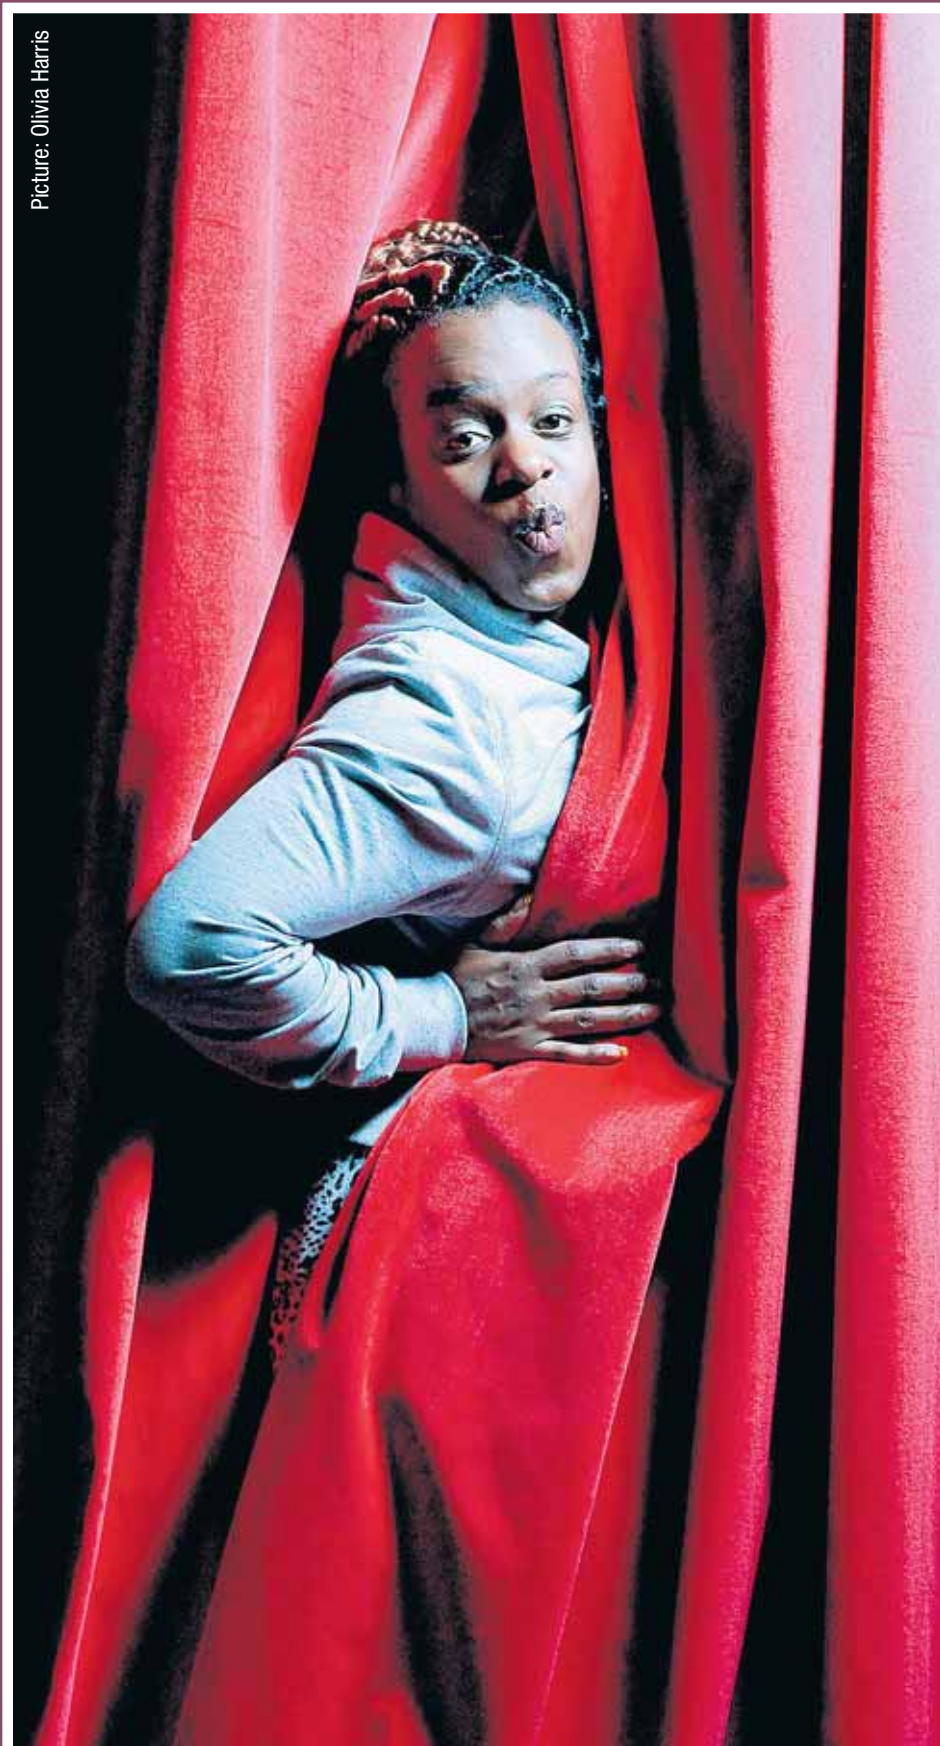

Tameka's also appeared on one of the UK's favourite squares. "I played Denise Wicks's sister Kimberley on 'EastEnders'. She's the total opposite to Denise – a real party girl; outgoing, funny, fashionable. I love playing the character and watch this space for more of her."

It looks like Tameka will be releasing more of her inner diva in the New Year.

THE GREEN GENIE

All your recycling questions answered

Q: I always have so much left over food during the Christmas holidays and it seems such a waste to throw it away. Is there any advice you can give which means the food can be put to better use?

A: If you live in a street level property you can recycle your food waste through the Blue Bin scheme. This is a weekly Council service that collects kitchen scraps for composting. Up to 34 per cent of what goes into an average Hackney household bin can be composted, which includes your food and garden waste.

For this reason the Council offers residents a choice of heavily subsidised compost bins and wormeries – saving up to 70 per cent of the original retail price.

Alternatively, why not create mouth-watering dishes from your leftovers with the 'Food Lovers Cookbook', produced as part of the Love Food Hate Waste campaign. The cook book is packed with recipes and tips, and suggests meals that can be made with leftover ingredients. Visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/lfhw

Spread the word

Teams of promoters have been knocking on doors in the borough to spread the word about new materials that can now be recycled

By
Gracia Douglas

FIVE teams of recycling promoters are currently out and about in the borough knocking on residents' doors.

Their mission is to spread the word about new materials that can now be recycled, including plastics such as yogurt pots, and Tetra Paks like juice and milk cartons.

The teams are also promoting the Council's food and garden waste collections, and handing out a booklet that explains the full range of Hackney's recycling services.

The campaign is being run by Waste Watch, a Hackney based charity, on behalf of the Council.

Their teams are easily recognisable as they will be wearing branded, high-visibility jackets and rucksacks, and carry an ID badge.

“Your efforts really help to make a difference. Keep up the great work in 2010”

In 2008/09 over 17,000 tonnes of household waste was collected for recycling in Hackney, around 23 per cent of all household waste generated in the borough.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “Thank you to the many residents who support the Council in our commitment to help make Hackney a cleaner, greener and more sustainable borough.

“Your efforts really help to make a difference in Hackney. Keep up the great work in 2010.”

Keep on recycling over Xmas

BRITAIN creates an estimated three million tonnes of rubbish over the festive period – half of which could be recycled – but it's never been easier to do your bit and reduce waste.

Cardboard packaging, empty jars of cranberry sauce and the foil from the turkey, as well as Christmas trees, can all be recycled.

People in street level properties should place appropriate materials in their Green Box as usual, while those who live on an estate or in a high-rise can use recycling bins, usually found near entrances.

Real Christmas trees can be left outside for recycling if residents use the Brown Bin scheme. Residents in estates or high rises can drop off Christmas trees at Millfields Depot between 28 December and 15 January, or they can be collected via the Council's bulky waste service.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “By recycling as much possible this Christmas, you'll be doing something positive for yourself and your community, helping to reduce pollution and saving resources. This also helps the Council to run more effectively by saving the money it would cost to send these materials to landfill. This money can then be invested in key services.”

Indulge in some tree-tail therapy

By Jennifer Riley

LOOKING for ways to make a difference? Why not consider buying a tree from Hackney's Christmas Forest?

For every fir bought, a new tree is planted by Tree Aid at the Forests for Food project in Ethiopia. Here, new trees can mean shade, food, medicines, tools and fuel – for life.

As well as being eco-friendly, trees often survive when other crops fail, so African families can rely on them to provide a sustainable, nutritious supply of food, including fruits and nuts.

Kelty Caston has run the Christmas Forest for the last ten years. She said: "Although every tree we source is replaced by another, I wanted to go further. Tree Aid really impressed me. In Africa, trees really do mean life for people."

The Christmas Forest trees are sustainably sourced and cut in late November and early December to make sure they are fresh.

The Christmas Forest is located at St Paul's Church, on the corner of Stoke Newington Rd and Amhurst Rd, N16.

Wildlife wish list

NATURE lovers who want to make their garden or window ledge a haven for wildlife should get planting this December.

If you want to see more birds, bees and butterflies come spring, the RSPB recommends that now is the time to get green fingered. Lee Cozens, from the RSPB, said: "Trees and shrubs provide nectar in spring, fruit in autumn and nesting and roosting habitats throughout the year. The right one can bring in the wildlife that you've always wanted, year after year."

If you're adventurous, try sweet honeysuckle to lure insects which could invite bats.

Holly trees with their bright, white flowers attract the holly blue butterfly and the festive red berries are tempting for blackbirds.

Yew trees are also much loved by goldcrests. It's easy when you know how!

Mayor Pipe joined Skinners' Company's School for Girls pupils at the topping out ceremony for Hackney's fifth academy

Top of the class

By
Jennifer Riley

A TOPPING out ceremony marked a milestone in the development of Hackney's fifth academy.

The Skinners' Academy in Woodberry Down, N4, due to open in 2010, will replace the existing Skinners' Company's School for Girls, in N16. Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, joined pupils from the current school at the 23 November event, where the completion of the highest point of the structure was celebrated.

Academy Principal designate, Jenny Wilkins, Skinners' school governors, and John Burrow, from The Learning Trust were also present. Christopher Everett, deputy chair of governors, said: "The Skinners' Company are delighted that their association with Hackney – which began with the Foundation of the Skinners' Company's School for Girls in 1890 – will continue for years to come in the Skinners' Academy."

The new school will be a non-denominational, 11-18-year-old, mixed school for 1,150 pupils. It is the first part of a new education and life-long learning campus for Woodberry Down, that will include a remodelling of the existing primary school, a new Children's Centre and an Adult Education Training Centre.

The £30million project is being developed by The Learning Trust, on behalf of the Council, and is funded by the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

Artistic advice

ART and design students from BSix college were able to pick up some top advice from professionals at a free event held in the Tate Britain gallery.

'Portfolio Advice Day' on 2 December was aimed at students from families where neither parent went on to higher education. Tutors and lecturers from some of London's finest art schools gave advice to around 600 young people from all over London. The morning sessions incorporated interview role play, how to build an attention-grabbing portfolio, and art gallery interpretation sessions.

BSix tutor Roger Healey-Dilkes organised the trip. He said: "Ten of our students went along and they found it very useful to go to such a prestigious institution and get the right advice. There are so many pathways in art and design and events like this help students progress successfully onto higher education."

NEWS IN BRIEF

The team from City Academy collect their award

A part of their school

HACKNEY'S newest academy has won a prestigious award recognising the relationship between students and their learning environment.

Homerton's City Academy, which opened in September, was singled out for the 'innovation in student engagement' honour at the Excellence in Building Schools for the Future (BSF) Awards.

Judges praised work between primary school pupils, Hackney Community College students, Studio E Architects, and the Sorrell Foundation, which promotes creativity in young people, to help design the striking building.

Andrzej Kuszell, project director, said: "We are particularly proud City Academy has captured the imagination of Hackney's community. The pupils claim it is 'the best school ever'."

Plastic bag petitioners

SOME of the borough's youngest green campaigners have called on the Council to make Hackney a plastic bag free zone.

Pupils from London Fields Primary attended a full Council meeting to ask steps are taken to make Hackney the first plastic bag free borough in London.

The idea was born from a school project that looked at the rise in supermarket reusable bags, as well the impact of plastic waste on the environment.

Year Six teacher Christina Savvo said: "The initiative was all the children's idea. They got family and friends to sign a petition, have been working hard to promote recycling and put together a speech to say in front of the Council. "It has been a great chance for them to make a difference and get involved in local democracy."

Responding to the deputation, Cllr Sophie Linden, Cabinet Member for Sustainability, said the Council could not ban plastic bags, but was undertaking a large amount of work to encourage residents and shops not to use them.

Plastic bags made up a small proportion of Hackney's waste, she added, and the Council was tackling other major recycling issues, such as food waste which contributed 38 per cent of all waste in the borough. Cllr Linden finished by saying the Council would do all it could to support the pupil's campaign.

Aladdin

Hackney Empire, until 9 January

WITH last year's Mother Goose praised to the rafters by an effusive press, Aladdin had a lot to live up to.

And, of course, it delivered. How could it not be a winner with a camel that sang and spat with such verve; with pandas that danced so charmingly; with such unashamedly old fashioned thigh slapping from the principal boy; and with the fulsome, nimble presence that is Clive Rowe stealing the show?

PREVIEW

A work of Genie-us

By Kate Gibney

ON my first panto outing as a child, my father whisked me from the theatre 10 minutes after the curtain rose.

Gravely concerned that my spirit would be permanently crushed by the terror that was a man dressed unconvincingly as a rat, he failed to note my enthusiasm. As an adult my liking for a hissable baddie is undiminished. And although the fabulous Clive Rowe owns the Empire stage as Widow Twankey, David Ashley's snarling sarcasm as Abanazar is a highlight of the 11th annual pantomime. Picking out highlights is not an easy matter in director Susie McKenna's production, where the cast's enthusiasm for their work is so apparent that it is impossible to tell whether their occasional slip-ups are genuine or contrived.

Anyone who has been to the Empire panto in recent years will recognise the recipe, but it has been magically reworked around the old Arabian Nights favourite. The story, costumes and set are as fresh as Aladdin's hapless brother Wishy Washy (Matt Dempsey) when he emerges from a giant washing machine. Not one, but a duo of lovelorn genies (Kat B and Josephine Melville); a garish and demanding Empress of China (Tameka Empson); and Anna Jane Casey's teetering-heeled Aladdin keep the action moving along nicely. The music – ranging from Beyonce and Queen to a participatory ditty about pandas – is live and excellent, and ties everything together in a beautiful venue. For info and booking call: 020 8985 2424; e-mail: boxoffice@hackneyempire.co.uk; or visit: hackneyempire.co.uk

Open Mic @ The Britannia

PREVIEW*The cost of human life

By Marcel Reinard

A Real Humane Person Who Cares And All That, Arcola Theatre, Dalston, until 19 Dec

MINIMALISM usually can go either two extreme ways: make you appreciate details, design and flavour, or leave you feeling very hungry, cheated and wishing the money was spent on something more substantial, like chips.

Thankfully, three scintillating actors and a biting script later should leave most more than satisfied: 'A Real Humane Person Who Cares And All That' is an hour of scathing comedy and chilling storytelling. The story follows the fall-out of three missing British writers in a Central Asian country the subsequent panic of ambassadors, civil servants and businesses. Each scene is played out brilliantly by Daniel McGowan, Benjamin Peters and Tiffany Wood, who together portray the moral struggles facing the play's nine characters.

Within minutes the overbearing nature of being close to the actors in an undersized, empty set is replaced by the magnificent dynamics of the trio on stage.

There are knowing references to post-colonial politics and a Britain-knows-best attitude to foreign policy that seem to borrow, but never steal, satirical aspects from 'Yes Minister'. These comic interludes usually take the audience unawares and chops neatly between intelligent dialogue. Yet at its core is a darker ethical message: the cost of a human life and if some lives – especially if they're British – are 'more equal' than others.

Presenting Xmas past

By Rebecca Hobson

Christmas Past 2009 and Eco Home at the Geffrye Museum, Kingsland Road, E2, until 3 Jan

IT seems the Geffrye Museum's two contrasting exhibitions, Christmas Past and Eco Home, have come together to inspire a seasonal events programme with a twist. As the name suggests, Eco Home examines how sustainable living can be incorporated into the home.

Going one step beyond the Reduce, Reuse and Recycle mantra, the exhibition demonstrates how new and novel techniques – such as milk protein fabric – can be integrated into household furniture. The show is supported by John Lewis and certainly maintains the brand's chic styling, dispelling any myth that suggests going green is going shabby. Rather, it proves how new eco-friendly design is as elegant as any other.

Meanwhile, the museum's latest exhibition, the annual Christmas Past show, sees the rest of the museum transformed into festive period rooms dating back to the 1600s. These rooms illustrate the different ways that Christmas has been celebrated throughout time.

Running alongside the two shows is the 'make-do and mend' inspired events programme that brings the shows together. Events include a vintage Christmas craft workshop, a decorations talk, where visitors can learn how people used to make festive decorations, and a swags and garlands workshop.

Lighting up the Olympic Park

Tony Coyle, International Broadcast Centre project director, with Hackney residents Juran Matthews and Duane Williams

By
Rebecca Hobson

YOUNG residents got a sneak preview of the International Broadcast Centre (IBC) at the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Park Site.

Leabank Square residents Juran Matthews and Duane Williams live directly opposite the site and were the first non-construction workers to take a peep inside on 30 November. The E9 duo also switched on the site's Christmas lights, which adorn trees planted along the River Lea. Olympic Delivery Authority Chief Executive, David Higgins, said: "It's great that local residents stole a march on the world's media to get the first look inside the IBC. The Olympic Park is the largest regeneration project in Europe and we work hard to be a good neighbour by minimising the impact of construction and involving local people in every stage of the project."

The IBC is structurally complete and the media centre is now taking shape next to it. During the Games it will be a media hub for around 20,000 journalists, photographers and broadcasters to bring the event to an estimated four billion people worldwide.

"It's great that residents stole a march on the media to get the first look inside"

After the Games, the facilities will create just under 900,000 square feet of sustainable business space with the potential of creating thousands of jobs.

It promotes participation and training in the arts for young people through

The festival also showcases some of the best of the borough's cultural industries.

The installation in the window of Rivington Place and (inset) working on the piece

A voice through art

AN art installation hopes to fast-forward visitors to Britain in 2024 – where diversity is replaced with an enforced single, standard culture.

Artists aged 18 to 25, including young people from Hackney, have collaborated with renowned aerosol writer A

Dee – The Artful Dodger – to create 'The Once and Future Britain' installation, which articulates their vision of a future Britain in light of current political situations.

Using stencils, photography, aerosol paintings and graphic design, they have transformed the window of Rivington Place.

Artist A Dee said: "The collaborative piece is a response from an often overlooked voice – that of the street, that of the youth, or that of the popular art form."

The Once and Future Britain runs until 2 January and is presented by Iniva (Institute of International Visual Arts) at Rivington Place. For info visit: www.iniva.org

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT SWINE FLU VACCINATION

The UK departments of health have launched the swine flu vaccination programme

The vaccine is being offered to people who are most likely to become seriously ill if they catch swine flu. These priority groups are made up of adults and children over six months of age who:

- Have a serious health condition such as chronic lung, heart, kidney, liver or neurological disease, or diabetes mellitus
- Are pregnant
- Have an immune system that is compromised because of a disease or treatment for a disease
- Live in the same house as someone whose immune system is compromised because of a disease or treatment for a disease

If you are in one of these priority groups you may be invited to go to a vaccination clinic or to make an appointment at your surgery. Not everyone in the country will get their vaccine at exactly the same time, so don't worry if you are not contacted straightaway.

If you are not in any of the priority groups listed you may be offered the vaccine at a later stage – but for now, the priority is to vaccinate those who are most at risk.

For more information, please go to www.direct.gov.uk/swineflu or contact the Swine Flu Information Line on 0800 1 513 513.

Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, Ed Balls MP, held the ceremonial scissors at Hackney Ark with seven-year-old Rebecca Middleton-Davies. They were joined by Paralympic swimmer, Dervis Konuralp, Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, and families who use the innovative facility.

Hackney Ark, E8, is a 'one-stop shop', launched in March 2008 to support all disabled children and young people, aged up to 19, in Hackney and the City. The joint venture by the Council, NHS City and Hackney Community Health Services, and The Learning Trust offers a range of 31 different healthcare, education and social care services.

Mr Balls said: "This is a fantastic example of integrated service for children and families, with staff working from health, education and children's social care all under one roof. I was really impressed with what I saw walking through this fabulous new building and speaking to front-line staff."

Mayor Pipe added: "This centre was designed in close consultation with the

NEWS IN BRIEF

Time to kick the habit

FOOTBALL fans who want to stop smoking can get free help from a virtual club of supporters, all determined to quit. Smokefree United provides coaching and support, as well as other incentives such as motivational messages from football legend Ian Wright, and prizes, such as the chance to play at a Premier League club.

The campaign is co-ordinated by the NHS and supported by TalkSPORT radio and a number of Premier League clubs. TalkSPORT host and former footballer Andy Townsend said: "I'd encourage all football fans and players who have thought about quitting to sign up. Quitting smoking will have a huge impact on your game and you'll immediately become more competitive on the pitch because your cardiovascular fitness will improve."

Services in your hands

A MAJOR public consultation on the future of local health services has been launched.

The review, called Health for North East London, covers seven London boroughs, including Hackney. It builds on earlier surveys that set out ambitious plans to improve health care services and asks how this can be delivered locally.

The aim is to provide care nearer to where residents live and ensure services are more accessible and provided by the most appropriately skilled staff. The proposal includes improvements to maternity, A&E and children's services at Homerton hospital.

The survey runs until 8 March. Pick up a proposal and questionnaire from public venues; call freephone: 0808 2385416; or visit: www.healthfornel.nhs.uk

Help Homerton while you shop

CHRISTMAS shoppers can make sure the Homerton hospital receives a donation with every purchase when they use a new gift card. It works just like a store loyalty card, except instead of collecting points with a purchase, a donation to the hospital's charitable fund is generated.

More than 100 retailers – including high street names like ASDA, Next, Currys, and John Lewis, have signed up to the scheme. Using it costs shoppers nothing, and it has no effect on the price of goods.

The loyalty card is currently only available for online shopping, but will soon be an option in some stores. Pick one up from the Homerton reception, or call: 020 8510 7112. To register your card visit: www.hospitalgift.co.uk

Leading the way for asthma

HOMERTON hospital is leading the way in seeking an effective treatment against children's asthma.

Its allergy clinic is one of only five in the country to have been chosen to trial a new drug – already proven to be an effective treatment for hay fever.

The hospital is planning a five-year trial which will include over 100 patients, aged between five and 12.

Consultant Allergy Nurse, Andrew Williams, said: "We are delighted to have been chosen to take part in this important research project.

"Hay fever affects thousands of adults and children throughout the spring and summer months.

"Many young sufferers go on to develop asthma. As the David Beckham case illustrated, asthma strikes at a young age and affects people throughout their adult lives.

"The patients will be given the hay fever drug Grazax for three years and then monitored for a further two years.

"Our aim is to see if the drug is not only effective in alleviating the symptoms of hay fever, but also reduces the number of youngsters developing asthma."

Job Profile Ash Iqbal

Principal Engineer, Street Lighting, talks to Hackney Today about the Street Lighting Technician role

What are the team's main responsibilities?

To maintain the public lighting and street furniture in as good a condition as possible and keep it lit. Also we are continuing to implement the Council's capital programme of lighting and furniture replacement across the borough.

In what ways is the job challenging?

New carbon reduction requirements are challenging, as we need to still keep good quality lighting, but also find ways of reducing our overall carbon emissions.

This is already underway with LED sign lighting and bollards and introducing LED street lighting trials. It is also challenging when residents expect instant energy supplies to newly installed lights, when that area of the works has to be co-ordinated with our electricity supplier, EDF Energy.

How is this job rewarding?

The job is rewarding when, year on year, we meet the targets required on our performance indicators and also with the fact that we have now replaced over 80 per cent of the street lighting in the borough. It is also good to be able to trial new technologies and be at the forefront in London on taking these technologies forward.

Stay clear of illegal minicabs

By
Gabriel Harriss

A marshalled taxi rank is now open in Shoreditch as part of an initiative to encourage safer travel at night.

The rank in Old Street – opposite Shoreditch Town Hall – operates on Fridays and Saturdays between 11pm and 3am.

Over Christmas, the rank will also be in business during the week from 15 to 17 December. It will be closed for the last two weeks in December and opens for business again on 2 January, 2010.

“Taking a safe licensed cab is crucial for personal safety’s sake”

The joint initiative between the Council, Transport for London (TfL), police and licensed taxi drivers is part of the ‘Cabwise’ campaign.

It includes a powerful TV and cinema advert to get across the message that getting into a minicab without booking is illegal, dangerous and can pose a serious risk of sexual assault.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “The marshalled taxi rank is an excellent new addition to the work the Council is doing to keep the streets safe in Shoreditch.

“It’s a particular asset during the party season, when Shoreditch sees an extra 30 per cent of visitors, attracted to its lively bars and clubs. Taking a safe licensed cab is crucial for personal safety’s sake.”

It is illegal for any minicab, even if the driver holds a TfL licence, to tout for business on the street or to carry out a journey that has not been booked through a licensed operator.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A new permit scheme means the Council can control utility works on the borough's roads

A hole new world

UTILITY companies will need a permit before digging up Hackney's roads from 11 January 2010, after the Government approved a TfL scheme.

The aim is to reduce congestion and improve traffic flow across London, as it will allow TfL and local councils to plan and co-ordinate the timing of roadworks.

It could prove to be a key measure for reducing the disruption to road users caused by the 300,000 holes dug in London's roads by utilities companies every year.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “This scheme has the potential to make a big difference to Hackney's road users. It will hopefully cut the inconveniences caused by badly timed road works and allow the Council to set conditions for companies to help minimise disruption.”

Action will be taken against utility companies which do not meet the conditions of their permit.

Christmas NLL closures

CHRISTMAS closures have been announced on the North London Line (NLL) between Stratford and Gospel Oak which will affect all Hackney stations.

The line will shut after the last train on Christmas Eve, 24 December, and re-open for the first train on Monday, 4 January.

A rail replacement bus service will operate, except on Christmas and Boxing days, serving all affected NLL stations between Stratford and Hampstead Heath.

Part of the NLL will close for the festive period

No traffic in Hillman Street

HILLMAN Street is closed to traffic until 15 January to allow for construction work to be completed to the new Hackney Service Centre.

The road behind Hackney Town Hall will still be open to pedestrians who can access Council offices at 2 Hillman Street via the normal entrance.

Temporary arrangements have been made for authorised users to access the Town Hall car park from Wilton Way.

For info call: 020 8356 3000 or e-mail: info@hackney.gov.uk

KEY FACT

The number of women using illegal cabs has fallen from 19 per cent in 2003 to four per cent in 2009

Festive travel times

New Year's Eve revellers will enjoy free transport across the capital to ensure they get home safely after a night of celebration.

There will be free travel on the Tube, DLR, London Buses and Tramlink on New Year's Eve from 11.45pm until 4.30am on New Year's Day. For the rest of the festive period on Christmas Eve, a Saturday service will operate on the Tube until 7pm and less frequently for the rest of the evening. Last trains will run at Sunday times. On Christmas Day, there will be no services on the Transport for London (TfL) network. Travellers are urged to check with TfL before setting out on their journey.

BRIGHT IDEAS

Steve Carroll, lighting & street furniture team leader

STEVE joined the Council in 2002 to start replacing lampposts that had been damaged in road traffic accidents. Before that he was a contracts manager for the Highways Agency working on maintaining the M25 with a well-known street lighting contractor. He's worked in the industry for around 20 years and is a qualified lighting designer. Steve said: "There have been several reports from the Government suggesting street lighting can act as a better crime deterrent than CCTV, so it's good to know we're contributing to improving people's security." He's also helped organise the borough's festive lights this year. Steve added: "Residents have suggested areas where they'd like festive lighting, but this year I'm particularly happy with the ones on trees outside the Town Hall, and the lights in Shoreditch Park."

Let there be lights

By
Gracia Douglas

THE Council's lighting and street furniture team is responsible for maintaining 'street furniture' such as lights, bollards, road signs and guard railings.

As part of the holiday season, this also includes the borough's festive lights.

There are currently 10 people in the team who manage different areas of the borough.

They check all of Hackney's lights remotely from their office in 280 Mare Street, and individually, outside at night. They also work closely with private energy companies to ensure the lights stay on, while getting them up and running quickly and safely if they switch off.

Ordinary, general lamp style, 60-watt bulbs are being phased out across the borough for more energy efficient and brighter light

Team Leader Steve Carroll is pleased with this year's festive lights emitting diodes (LEDs).

There are currently around 100 LED street lighting units in Hackney, which burn for up to 100,000 hours and have significantly reduced annual costs.

Following trials in Homerton Terrace and Shoreditch Park, alleys and communal areas with low lighting have been the first sites to benefit from the new technology.

THIS is the latest in a series of recipes courtesy of Water House – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. Chef Ben Spice shares a new festive favourite and a fantastic alternative to smoked salmon. He said: "I created this dish last year while looking for an alternative Christmas starter to smoked salmon. Big predator fish like cod and salmon that take years to mature have been incredibly hard hit by man's plunder of the ocean and their size and number may never recover unless we leave them alone. "Fortunately smaller fish like Cornish mackerel are a sustainable catch, as well as a fantastically delicious offering. Cured mackerel just sits so well on a Christmas menu and the money you'll save compared to buying smoked salmon will leave you with more than a little something extra for stocking fillings. "This warm salad has been a popular lunch of the day for a fiver throughout November and December. "Check out the Water House website where we post our daily specials each morning, to find out when it will next be appearing."

Looking ahead

HACKNEY Wick is an area that is set to undergo great changes.

The 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, combined with private and public sector investment, have resulted in a need for a strategy to guide and manage change in the area. The Council would like residents' views on a draft Hackney Wick Area Action Plan (AAP) – a tool to manage development pressures and to help regeneration.

It clearly sets out the future vision for the area and addresses some core objectives. These include creating a distinctive neighbourhood hub around Hackney Wick Station; and harnessing the benefits of the area's waterways.

Terrace guidance

THANKS to everyone who had their say during a public consultation on planning and design guidance for Dalston Lane Terrace. It set out potential policies for the terrace, and will form a strategy for guiding future development.

Residents were invited to answer a short questionnaire that explored topics relating to usage, retention of traditional brickwork, building height, and use of land behind the terraces. There were 154 responses, which showed the guidance in its original form covered most things residents wanted to see. There was some scope for changes however, which are outlined in the report at: www.consultationfinder.com/hackney

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm
